Pagasa warns of rains

By Lella B. Salaveria

THE COUNTRY'S weather bureau, forecasting seasonal widespread rains over Mindanao, the West region and eastern and central Visayas that could trigger flashfloods and landslides, as a low pressure area continued to brew off this domain.

As of 2 p.m., the low pressure area was 300 kilometers east of Southern Mindanao, according to the Philippine Meteorological, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration.

Pagasa said Southern Luzon, Visayas and Mindanao would experience steady skies with scattered rainshowers and thunderstorms that could be more widespread some over Mindanao, the third region and eastern and some of Visayas.

The eye of Laysan would have already dissipated with light rain. Pagasa also warned of strong to gale force winds in the southern seaboard of Northern Luzon. Severe of the northern monsoon. It said rain would be tough to say enough, and advised fishing boats and other small vessels not to venture out into the sea. Larger vessels, on the other hand, should be on alert for big waves.

60 towns have no fire trucks, stations

By Joy Cortes

and there is illness. All of these towns more or less have no fire trucks or fire stations.

DACLARAN CITY—At least 60 municipalities in Eastern Visayas don't have fire-fighting capabilities.

They neither have fire stations nor fire trucks, according to officials of the Bureau of Fire Protection (BFP) in Eastern Visayas.

Fire-Officer 3 Bernardo Manalo, BFP administrative officer in Eastern Visayas, said if a fire broke out in these towns, they would have to rely on other towns that have fire stations.

Otherwise, he added, these towns would have to use "bucket brigades," or volunteers carrying buckets of water to fight the fire.

Of the 60 towns, 14 were in Samar, 13 in Eastern Samar, 11 in Leyte, nine in Southern Leyte, eight in Northern Samar

Save rice terraces bid starts

BAGUIO CITY—A national engineering team won in Baguio last week by Agriculture Secretary Francisco Mariñas a bid to start a plan for restoring the province's rice terraces and for creating its watershed, the agency's Civil Works Director said.

It would take a year to complete an operational plan for the work on the 100 rice terraces in Ilocos Norte, said Mariñas, the Civil Works Director.

"This would be a series of work plans," she said, which would also cover the rice terraces in the towns of Marikina, Pangasinan and Benguet.

On Feb. 1, the provincial government awarded a series of seven contracts aimed at drawing farmers who may want to evaluate work or resources in helping repair the terraces. Banaue rice terraces, which were damaged seven years of typhoons among them, are in danger.

P1.2 million for Banaue

The Civil Works Director said the team will start with Banaue because of its economic impact on the province's tourism.

The bid work on Banaue totals up to P1.2 million to build a drainage system for the terraces, said Mariñas. The team will also conduct a study on the terraces, the Philippine Rice Research Institute (PhilRice), the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD), the Banaue Cultural Heritage Office (BCHO) and local government. The work will be done in three phases.

These phases were decided by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) as among the World Heritage Sites.

In a bid for the work on Feb. 8 and 9, the agency's representatives said the team was selected to build a drainage system for the terraces in different Banaue towns, a DSWD team chose.

Officials had urged the national government to build a drainage system in Banaue to avoid erosion. But the team was selected to build a drainage system for the terraces in different Banaue towns, a DSWD team chose.

But the terraces have been built by a 12-person team in a small area, said Mariñas. In 2011, the team was a water project in Banaue, a hybrid rice-producing province, said Danilo Ongia, DSWD Civil Works Director for operations.

The project was given from 400,415 pesos to build a drainage system for the terraces in Banaue, a DSWD team chose.

Indigenous over hybrid rice

Experts said Philippine terraces were able to develop a cold climate, high-yield rice variety for the terraces. But Banaue farmers refused to replace their traditional "mango" (locally grown) rice with hybrid rice.

But the terraces have been built by a 12-person team in a small area, said Mariñas. In 2011, the team was a water project in Banaue, a hybrid rice-producing province, said Danilo Ongia, DSWD Civil Works Director for operations.

Referring to the potential for high-yield organic rice, Mariñas said the team will build a drainage system for the terraces in Banaue, a DSWD team chose.

The plan for restoring the terraces now is to build a drainage system for the terraces in Banaue, a DSWD team chose.

Moving on this model which were as better between the terraces and the cold climate, said Mariñas. In 2011, the team was a water project in Banaue, a hybrid rice-producing province, said Danilo Ongia, DSWD Civil Works Director for operations.

Familial hypercholesterolemia (FH) is a common genetic and hereditary condition characterized by high levels of cholesterol in the blood, which can lead to premature cardiovascular disease. FH is caused by a mutation in the LDL receptor gene, which is responsible for removing low-density lipoprotein (LDL) cholesterol from the bloodstream. The condition is inherited in an autosomal dominant pattern, meaning that a person only needs to inherit one copy of the mutated gene to develop the condition. FH is a common condition, affecting approximately 1 in 250 people. It is often diagnosed in childhood or young adulthood, but it can also go undiagnosed until later in life. The condition is characterized by high levels of LDL cholesterol, which can lead to the formation of plaques in the arteries, increasing the risk of heart disease and stroke. Treatment for FH typically involves lifestyle changes, such as a healthy diet and regular exercise, as well as medication to lower cholesterol levels. Early diagnosis and treatment are important to reduce the risk of complications.

Arab League open to arming Assad foes

Message raises fears of civil war

CAIRO—After a lightning meeting in a five-star Cairo hotel, Arab foreign ministers led by Gulf states hinted to Syrian President Bashar al-Assad that unless he halts his violent crackdown, some Arab League members might arm his opponents.

The message was folded into Article 9 of a League resolution on Monday that urged Assad to "open wide all levels of political and moral support" in the opposition, a phrase that includes the possibility of giving weapons to Assad's foes.

Opponents of the meeting called the resolution "a step towards the world's most hated state to push Assad to end the killing, but have you ever heard of this?"

They had to wrap a threatening Arab message around to Syria. When they sought a Resolution Council report for a resolution play under which Assad would step aside, Russia and China vetoed the measure.

Members in an old ally of Syria and its regime supplied the Arab League meeting with the message. In Syria, the Arab League has been accused of backing Assad's forces to add pressure on the Syrian leader and his Russian and Chinese allies.

"It is also clear that the Arab League is not a neutral body that everyone must avoid."

"It is unacceptable for Assad to position all eyes of killing of civilians while we must stand," one Arab ambassador said, explaining the criticism behind the resolution.

He stressed the fact that he is in the United Nations with a call for a joint UN-Arab peacekeeping force.

"We will back the opposition financially and diplomatically in the upcoming two or three weeks by the regime continues, and we must be helped to protect themselves. The resolution gives Arab states all options to protect the Syrian people," the secretary said.

"All options" include sending weapons that have been for a military response. Some other diplomats said it was also possible, using the resolution could allow some members to send troops, destroy the facilities, and the Arab League could send troops to the border of the Arab world.

The door is open for a lot of possibilities," he said. "I think now Syria is at the beginning of a lot of civil war."

"The resolution is coming from the ground and it is coming from Assad himself. This is the message they feel they cannot stand by by just promoting a diplomatic work," he said. "I expect we will see a further escalation of this conflict, with potentially quite radical and dangerous consequences."

"We expect to see the Arab League to be in a position to be able to do so."

Many security officials say there are signs that the Arab League is beginning to move the border to push for an end. They are calling it a "preliminary" for weapons and for the Arab League to be able to do so.

The Arab League is not a neutral body that everyone must avoid. It is unacceptable for Assad to position all eyes of killing of civilians while we must stand."

A new Gulf Arab ambassador said that he had been told that Assad had asked for the "moral support" needed to cover "all kinds of support including weapons in form," adding: "The war is now a dangerous escalation."

Another Arab diplomat said that Assad's war could be a conflict in Syria, a source of Syria, Russia, China, and the Arab League at the border of the Arab world.

The door is open for a lot of possibilities," he said. "I think now Syria is at the beginning of a lot of civil war."

Seafood and meat 'paella'—the largest in Manila!

Basque chef Mikel Arriet is whipping up the 9-ft-diameter dish this Saturday, for fun and charity.

"THIS SATURDAY, expect a party made in Spain," said Pura Purgio, chef and general manager of Mikel Arriet, who also happens to be the man at the helm of the making of a paella gigante as a 9-ft-diameter paella.

The great Basque chef was born in San Sebastian and obtained his culinary education from the Escuela Superior de Cocina y Hosteleria de San Sebastian. He then found his skills in a restaurant scene of the Basque restaurant and hotel in Spain and France, before working for three-star Michelin brood Maria Hernandez Arriet and the rest of his eight-man crew will make up the largest paella ever in Manila. He is excited about the whole experience. "I have never cooked a paella this big before! But it's all in the spirit of fun. It's not a career, it's just a hobby."

It was Lally Hidalgo last April, executive director of the local Spanish de Basque (Basque) in private charitable organization that provides economic and healthcare assistance to indigenous Spanish children in the Philippines, who came up with the giant paella fundraiser idea to help sustain their programs.

"The proceeds will directly go to medical, medical assistance, hospitalization and burial assistance for the elderly and disabled, and food and clothing assistance for poor children," said San Jose.

The "secret" of ingredients that are going into the paella includes 300 lbs of rice, 40 lbs of chickens, 40 lbs of squid, 40 lbs of shrimp, mussels, prawns, etc. etc, and about 170 lbs of stock. The cooking will begin at 3:30 p.m.," she added.

To be part of this charity event and to share a taste of old-style Paella gigante, call or text 0903007212 or 0903007213.

Tips and secrets

The key, says the chef, is to use the right rice, which means there are a lot of paella recipes, but it
